Introduction

The healthcare sector constantly evolves with technological advancements, and one critical aspect is patient record management.

Traditional paper-based systems are inefficient, leading to errors, data loss, and collaboration challenges.

One critical challenge in this landscape is the effective management of patient records, particularly in large healthcare facilities that handle thousands of patients daily.
To address this issue, we propose a cloud-based patient record management system designed to facilitate efficient and secure handling of patient information.